FINANCIAL NEWS AND COMMENT

Wall Street Considers President's Message and German Imbroglio.

STOCKS DOWN AT CLOSE

from yesterday's stock market was that Wall Street was still in a state of uncertainty about the immediate reflection of facts and events bearing on quoted values. Among the subjects urged on financial attention were the President's annual message in the form of a direct address to Congress and the new sugicle of reverses for the Allies seemed to be noted a little more uneasily than had been the case of late, possibly because Wall Street had been anticipating some reflection of a disappointing outcome of the Angio-French loan syndicate. If there was anything, however, in the day's news which seemed clearly to influence Wall Street sentiment it was the entrance of the country's relations with Germany into a fresh phase of strain as a sequel to the industrial and political warfare which has been carried on here by alien agents under official direction. On this matter Wall Street was decledly not disposed to form any snap judgment.

direction. On this matter Wall Street was deceledy not disposed to form any snap judgment.

That a new stimulus to British liquidation of our securities has been the effect of the plan to mobilize foreign investments for national use would seem to be inferential from the action of the foreign exchange market. This liquidation is welcomed by our finance, which for months past regretted the scanty rate of return of our securities from abroad when we are so well equipped to absorb frem and when this return would help steady the foreign exhanges.

Many factors are entering into the relative degree of firmness which sterling has recovered, but it is probable that one of the most important is a larger shipment of our bonds and stocks from British strong boxes. We are now in the heaviest export trade movement of the year. The export balance for last week was about $55,000,000, and there are more surface reasons for weakness in sterling exchange than the contrary, yet demand sterling closed around 4.71½ last night, the maximum attained so far on the present rally. week was about $55,000,000, and there are more surface reasons for weakness in sterling exchange than the contrary, yet demand sterling closed around 4.71½ last night, the maximum attained so far on the present rally.

Refined copper was dull yesterday, with few inquiries in the market. Second hands more anxious to sell in the neighborhood of 1995; for electrolytic. Producing interests continued to hold at 193, to 20c. Periodically, whenever the market is dull, reports of heavy German purchases are put out in the neighborhood of 1988 1083, and indefinite form. Undoubtedly German in the near the market is dull, reports of heavy German purchases are put out in the near the form and indefinite form. Undoubtedly German in the near the top of the form many months, as they always have done heretofore, but reports that the German Government is actually buying here now are not credited, although it is possible.

The London market for American electrolytic was dull and nominal yesterday at 193 for spot. Standard copper was down 16s. on spot and futures. Exports reported yesterday were heavy, aggregating 4.57 tons, including twenty-five tons of rods from Philadelphia. All the other shipments were from New York, the heaviest being made to France. Imports included 15 tons of pig copper from Chile.
